Call to Order

Tronson called the meeting to order at 4:11 p.m.

Walk of Fame Report

Martinez-Holler reported that the Ricky Martin ceremony drew 2,000 fans and H&H, SEM and extra LAPD officers were required. On November 20, 2007 the Munchkins will receive a star and Will Smith will receive both a star and hand & footprint ceremony on the same day in December.

Martinez-Holler brought the Committee's recommendation of Susanne Pleshette to receive a star in January.

(MSP: Schultz, Goldman) to approve Pleshette.

SUZANNE PLESHETTE BIOGRAPHY

To describe SUZANNE PLESHETTE as a television star would surely be accurate since she has dominated the screen in that medium as no other female performer.

She has run the gamut from live television performances that began at the age of eleven, through award winning performances as an adult in Movies for Television, a form which she helped establish as a leading woman in the first made for television movie. She has achieved a ratings record which remains unchallenged to date and she managed, by some kind of magic, to have achieved further respect by going back and forth between comedy and drama, half hour and hour formats, carving out female characters who seem to define the issues of the women of our times, in five network series.

Starting with the memorable "BOB NEWHART SHOW" in which she starred as "Emily" for six years, and the controversial hour series "Nightingales" for which, ironically, SUZANNE received awards from the very same nursing associations that forced the cancellation of the show. She has remained an active force in the series arena, even stepping behind the camera to develop and co-produce two television series, "MAGGIE BRIGGS" and "BRIDGES TO CROSS" functioning as a working executive and an actress.

In the "BOYS ARE BACK" pilot she delivered the highest test ratings in the history of CBS and the rare distinction of being on the air with 2 series simultaneously, with the "BOYS ARE BACK", airing weekly on CBS and "THE BOB NEWHART SHOW", airing nightly on NICK AT NIGHT.

Along with every other award that accrues to someone with such a body of work, her contributions have been acknowledged by 4 Emmy nominations, a Golden Globe Best Actress nomination for her chilling portrayal of Leona Helmsley in "THE QUEEN OF MEAN".

Surely this would justify the label of television star, but to limit SUZANNE PLESHETTE to such a definition would be to negate a similarly impressive career in the Theatre, and as a formidable leading woman in Motion Pictures.

Discovered by the famed Sanford Meisner, founding member of the Group Theatre, and head of the Neighborhood Playhouse School of the Theatre, the then 10 year old SUZANNE, was directed by him in her stage debut, a revival of the play "TRUCKLINE CAFÉ" which brought the adult Marion Brando to stardom, and the young SUZANNE to the attention of the public for the first time. Preferring an education to a career she retired at the age of 11, to attend school, and was one of the early students to graduate from the Board of Education's greatest gift to young talent, The High School of Performing Arts. Continuing on, she attended Syracuse University, Finch College and private study work with Sanford Meisner.

She returned to the stage, as an adult, getting her first starring role in the play "COMPULSION" one week after graduating from school. Her fortuitous beginning was followed by equally successful turns as the leading woman in "THE COLD WIND AND THE WARM", "THE GOLDEN FLEECING", "THE MIRACLE WORKER" and even a production of "TWO FOR THE SEE-SAW". Somehow she managed to achieve this while also being one of the most sought after young leading women in feature films.

Racking up thousands of miles in the air, commuting between coasts, she managed an impressive score of stage and film successes. Movies, totaled more than 30, working with some of the master directors in Hollywood. "THE BIRDS" for Alfred Hitchcock, "NEVADA SMITH" for the famed Henry Hathaway, her debut film, "GEISHA BOY" for Frank Tashlin and the tender "ROME ADVENTURE" for Delmer Daves. She was the leading lady for many first time directors who were launched with her films, they include, Norman Jewison "40 POUNDS TO TROUBLE", Mel Stuart with "IF IT'S TUESDAY IT MUST BE BELGIUM" and Dom DeLuise with "HOT STUFF".

Though we take these kind of crossovers for granted today, SUZANNE was an early maverick and constantly chose to go where material would challenge her, using excellence as her only guide despite the warnings of the studios that she would be damaging her film career, by continuing to pursue work in the theatre and in television.

Very few movie stars of that period had the courage or the expertise to be juggling, theatre, live television, movies, anthologies, series, Moves For Television, and even, a stint as the first non-singing, non-comedic Guest Host of the "TONIGHT SHOW". Only SUZANNE was seen on all of these fronts, managing to successfully balance a happy, long term marriage with these professional achievements.

Often, talented people have the ability to succeed in many lateral fields, but SUZANNE stepped out of the performing arena, to achieve success in the corporate world as well. As founding partner in "THE BEDSIDE MANOR" a company which was instrumental in changing the face of the bedding industry, she was responsible for the initial designs which started the coordinated bed linen concepts which, are mass produced all over the world today. As principal designer for J.P. Stevens Utica Division for eleven years, her designs for bed linens, textiles and related household products were the highest selling in their industry. Offered a place on their Board of Directors, she had to make a choice, finally between the corporate world, and her work as an actress and though she continued to design on a freelance basis for several years, undeniably, she was an actress first.

A recent profile of Kirk Douglas for Volume Three of DOUBLE EXPOSURE, Roddy McDowall's collection of portraits of performing artists, adds published author to her credits and it's one of her most cherished titles. Still in demand in motion pictures and television and after a triumphant return to the theatre in "SPECIAL OCCASIONS" a few years ago, a desirable stage commodity, she seems to belie the fact that roles for women, and especially roles for mature women are diminishing. Either, she is very lucky or we are, for it seems with so much to admire, the best is yet to come.
