To Whom It May Concern,

Murals are important. They create, creativity in the community. Murals create artist they also show inspiration to other people. When you come into art there is no right answer but if you go into math two plus two has to equal four. In schools there are art classes and also animation classes. These classes are there because people want art. Art is everywhere you go. Murals express that art.

When you see papers of blueprints that is an idea. When you draw art it is also an idea soon to be turned into something bigger and better. It is a blueprint to a whole new world. When you paint a mural you show that world to the whole community. If anyone were to take this away. There would only be ideas in drawings of art.

Murals are important to the community because of all the reasons. Murals shows creativity and inspiration to the people. If you take that away there will nothing else than an idea. A drawing stopped from being turned into something bigger and better for the community to enjoy. This is why murals are important.

Sincerely,

Daniel Osberto Gonzalez
