It's Not All Roses for The Bankster's Victims!

It has already been estimated that approximately over 4 million foreclosures are slated for the year 2013. The theme of this year's Rose Parade is, "Oh, The Places You'll Go!" Sadly, hundreds of thousands of families are being forced to go places they never expected -to motels, apartments, relatives' homes, abandoned homes and even homeless encampments--after being tricked and defrauded by transnational banks such as Bank of America, Chase, Wells Fargo and Deutsche Bank. These are the same banks that were bailed out by taxpayers in 2008-2009. They have been sued by governments and charged with criminal acts of immense proportions (the Libor scandal, tax evasion, money laundering, fraud), yet the U.S. government has not put a single bankster in jail. To the contrary, the banks are using local law enforcement to evict homeowners.

Our float in the Rose Parade will serve as a reminder to the thousands of homeowners who are holding on to their homes that they are not alone, and it will serve as a reminder to the banks of the millions of families they have displaced.

Homeowner's Bill of Rights
Will take effect on January 1st, 2013!
"Occupy Fights Foreclosures" is dedicated to end the bank abuse against home owners, the families, and the communities in which they live. As we step into a new year, we welcome the new Homeowner's Bill of Rights--a new tool in helping homeowners fight back against the fraud and to keep their homes. We were on hand to help in getting that bill to pass, and we will be on hand to help with the implementation to help the thousands of families who have been left alone without representation in this foreclosure fiasco.
