Dear Maya:

Please be advised that at its Board of Directors Meeting held on February 3, 2009, the Neighborhood Council of Westchester Playa approved a motion supporting the Howard Hughes Center CUP application relating to the buildings located at 5900, 5901, 6040 and 6055 Center Drive conditional upon the reduction of the height of 6055 Center Drive to a uniform maximum height of 268 feet above mean sea level.

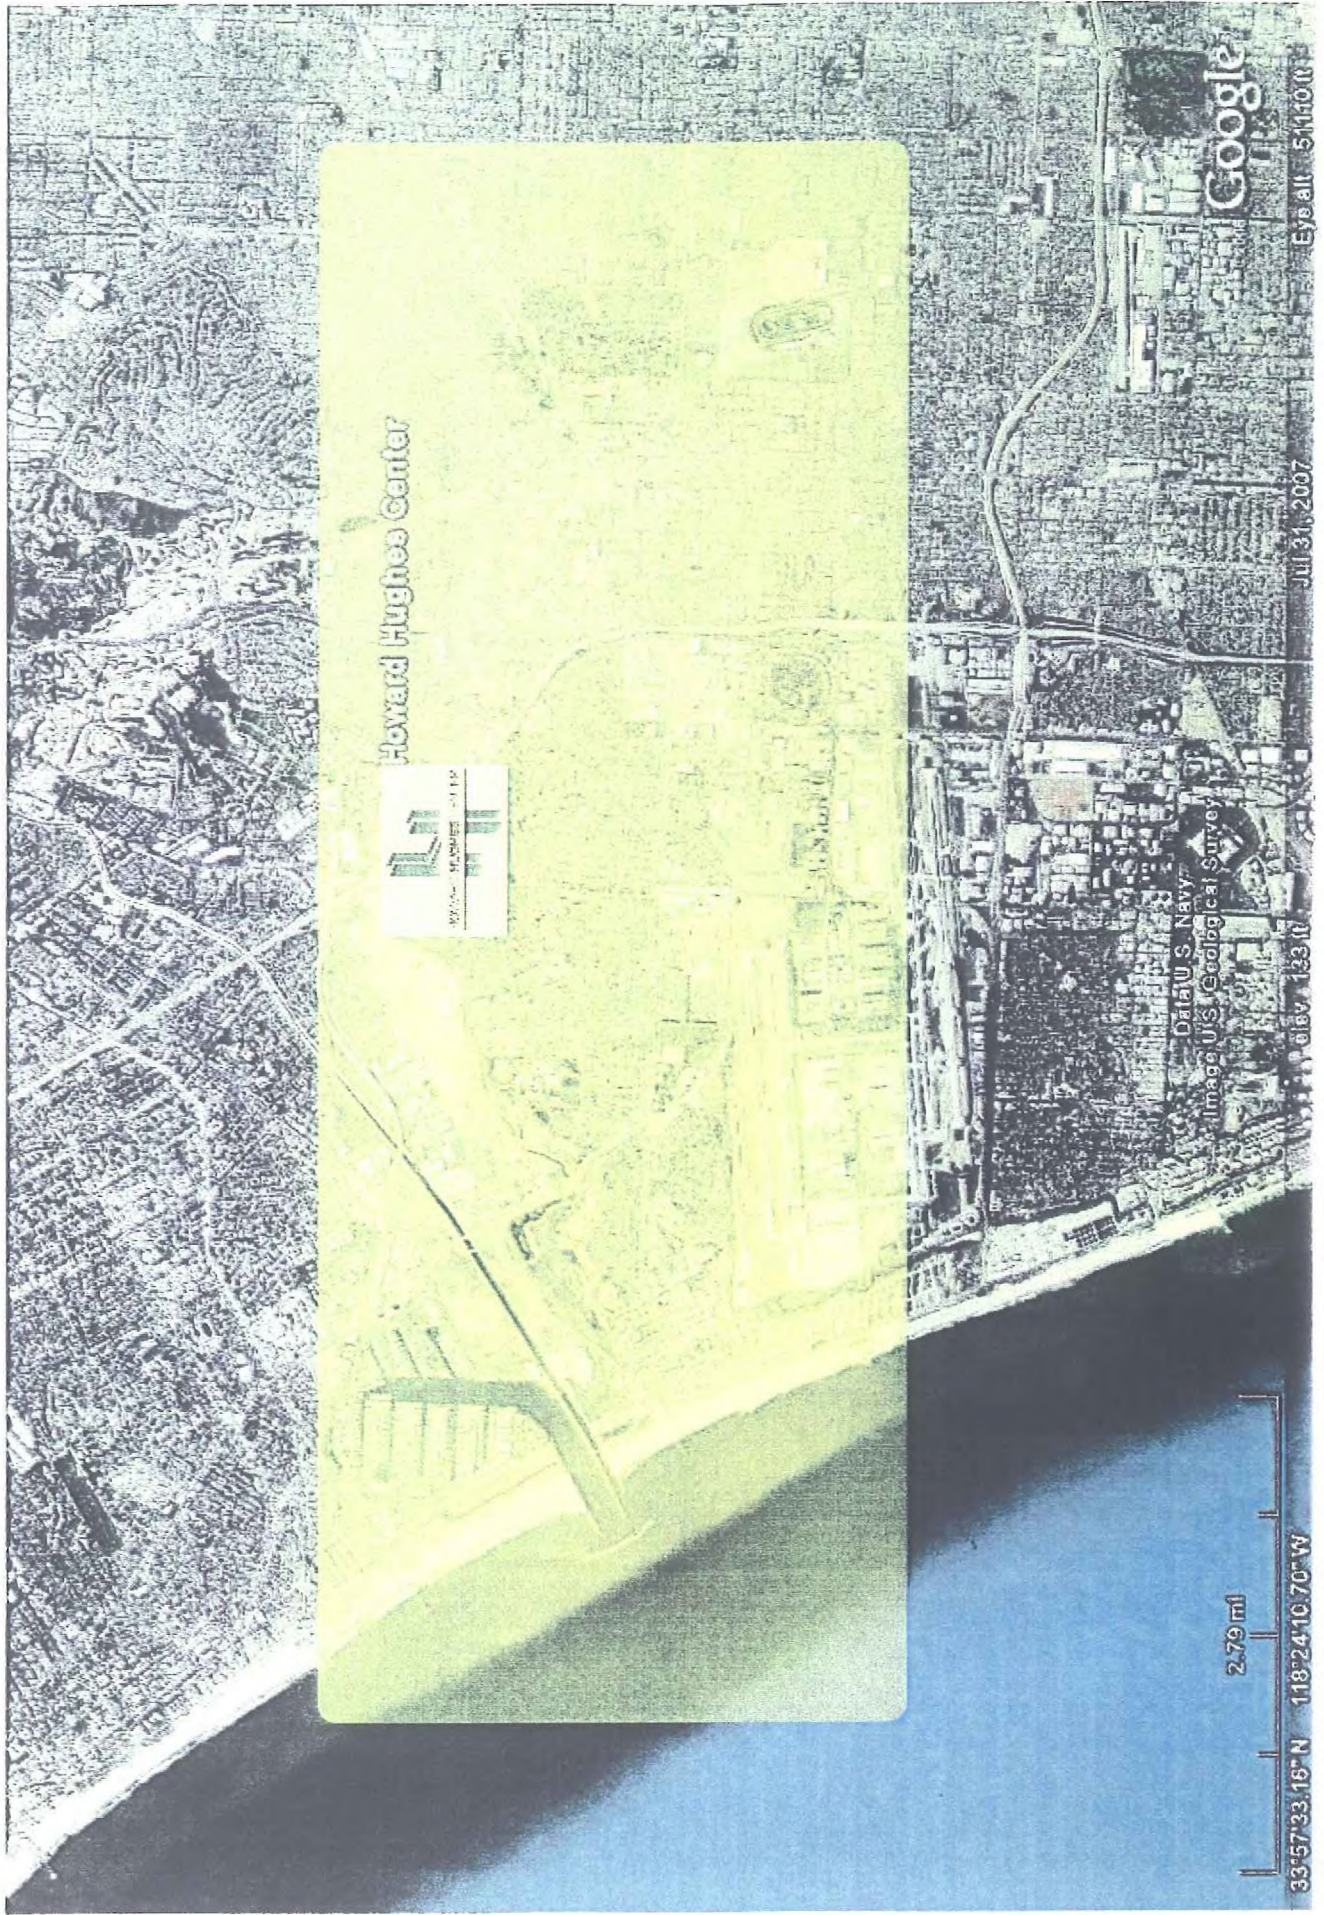

We were pleased that the developer was responsive to our request to reduce the height of the tallest building by six stories in response to the community concern we heard from our stakeholders.

Very truly yours,

Cyndi Hench,

President Neighborhood Council of Westchester Playa

RE: Equity Partners Howard Hughes Project
As presented February 19, 2009

Dear Ms. Zaitzevsky:

On February 19, 2009, the LAX Coastal Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors unanimously voted to approve and endorse the Equity Partners Howard Hughes project. This decision was based on the recommendation and full support of the Chamber's Planning and Land Use Committee and Executive Committee.

Furthermore, we appreciate the developer's willingness to take into consideration and make modifications to the project design based on community input. Specifically, in the height reduction of the condominium tower to 268 feet from 326 feet.

The Chamber applauds the developer in not only their on-going commitment to traffic mitigation, but also their commitment to being a good neighbor to the encompassing community.

We look forward to seeing the project through to completion and seeing this project finally come to fruition.

Re: Howard Hughes Center

Dear Ms. Zaitzevsky,

On behalf of the Board Members of the Westchester Streetscape Improvement Association, an organization dedicated to the revitalization of Sepulveda Boulevard corridor through the Westchester community, I would like to express our support for creating residential opportunities at Howard Hughes Center.

The addition of residences at the Center will be an ideal complement to our mission of turning what was once merely a thoroughfare to LAX into a more pedestrian-friendly community. We are confident that the new housing opportunities at the Howard Hughes Center will assist us by providing the demographics needed to attract new businesses, restaurants, entertainment and shoppers to the Westchester community, and specifically to the downtown business district.

We look forward to the completion of the Howard Hughes Center master plan as the impetus for our vision to create a warm, inviting community where people can live, work, shop and play.

Sincerely,

John Ruhlen
President

SUMMARY

A working group has been formed between the City of LA, Culver City, County of Los Angeles, and the Los Angeles Department of Transportation to discuss regional traffic mitigation measures and how the working group members can jointly fund projects. In addition, as a result of the change of the Metropolitan Transit Authority's Congestion Management Plan to a traffic fee, developers are paying fees to cities so each city must be prepared to pool funds together for regional traffic improvements.

The goal of the meeting between Equity Office Properties and the representatives from Culver City was to preemptively get together to discuss regional traffic, and how to ensure the success of mitigation measures coupled with new development projects in the region. One specific idea to be addressed was the creation of a shuttle service between Culver City and major employment areas, such as Howard Hughes Center.

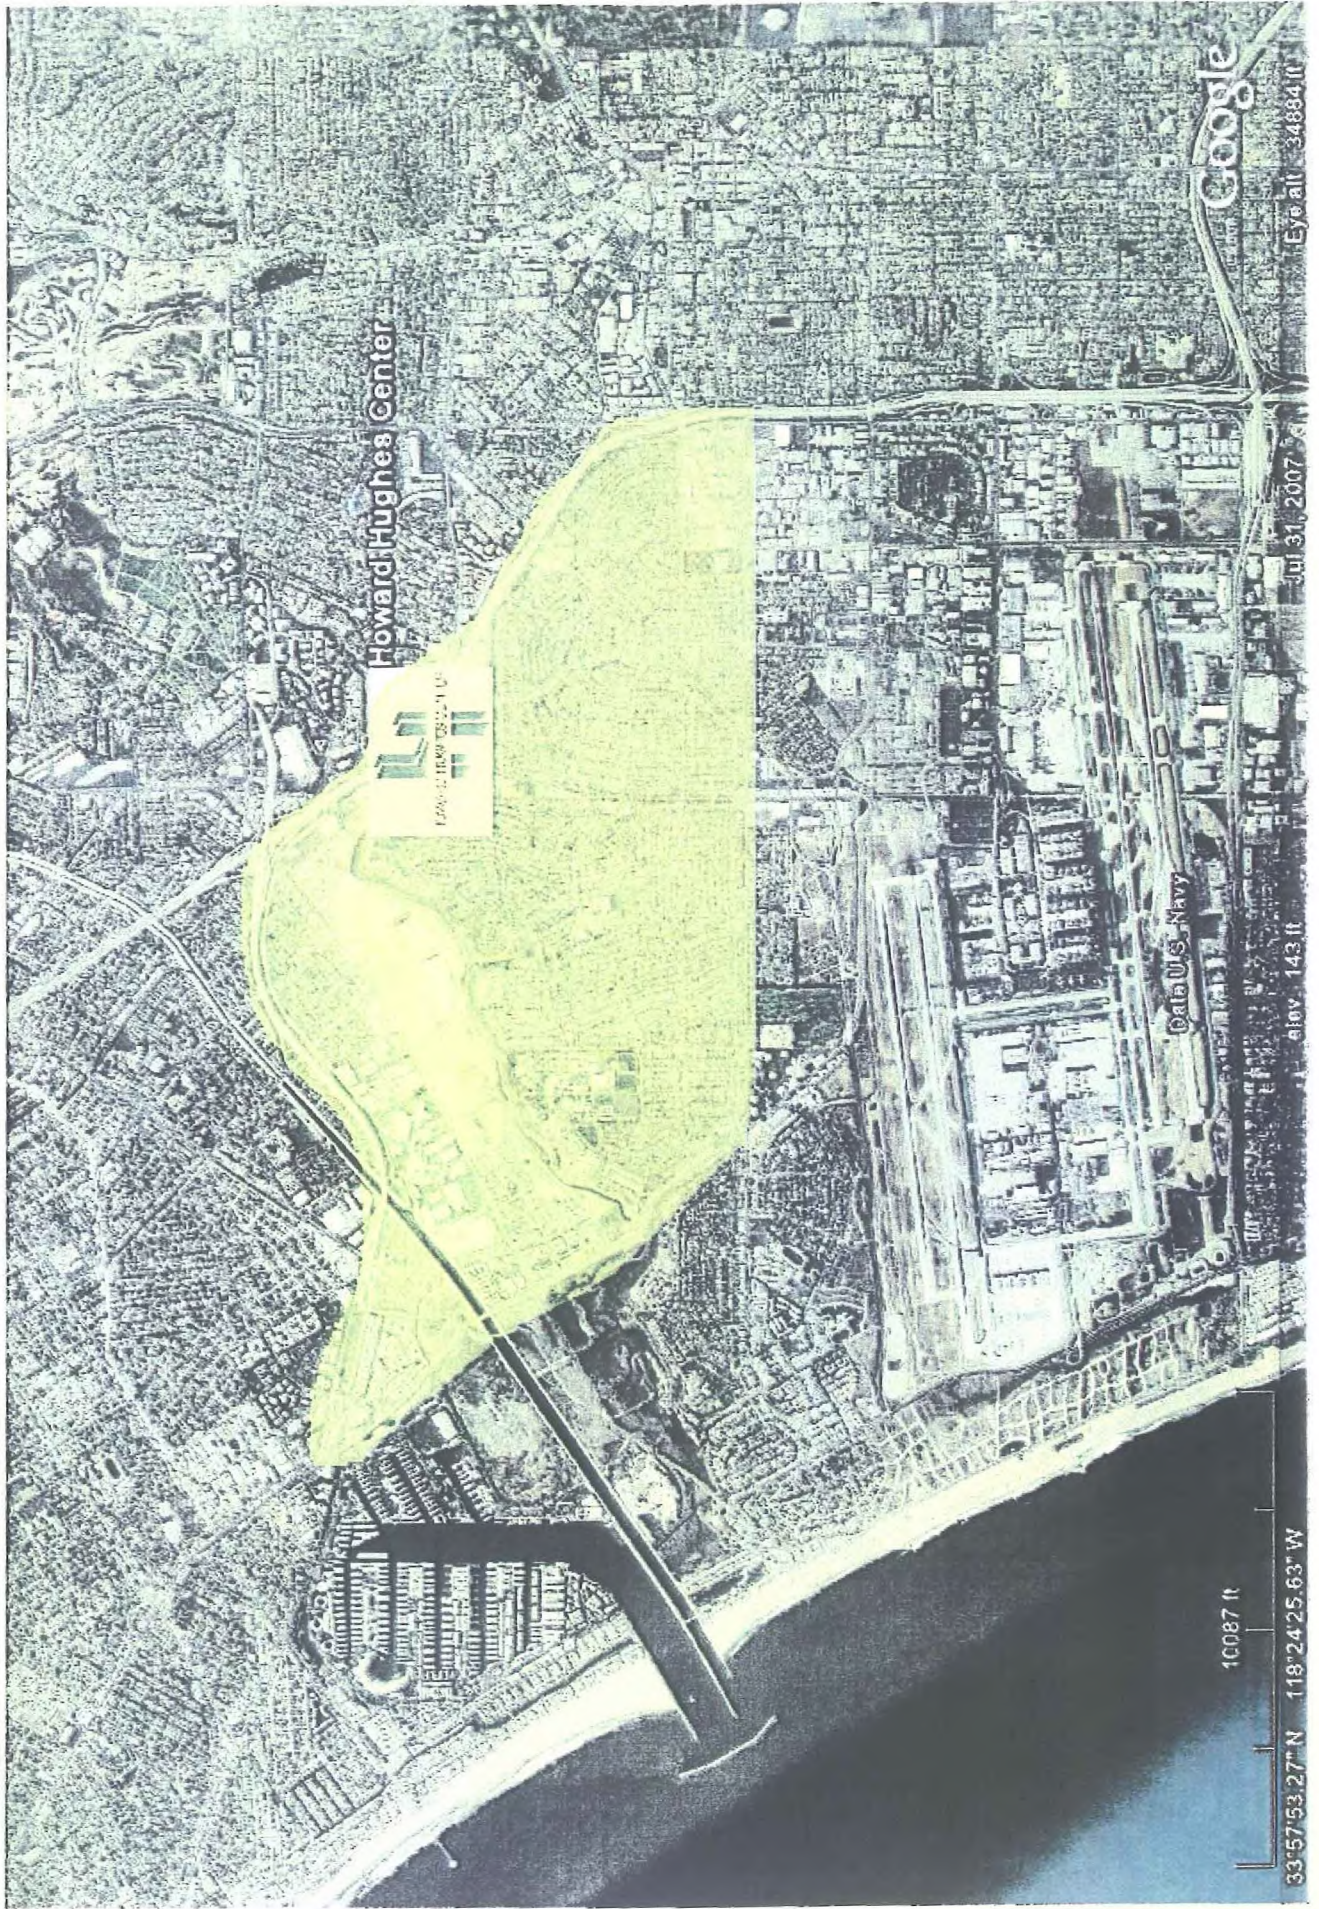

ISSUES RAISED/DISCUSSED

- The vision of live/work/play at Howard Hughes Center
- Comparison between original Master Plan and proposed plans
- Success of the Transportation Demand Management program at Howard Hughes Center
- Unity between Equity Office Properties and Culver City on finding solutions to regional traffic
- Feedback from the community

ACTION ITEMS

- Formal presentation of Howard Hughes Center's Transportation Demand Management program to Culver City representatives.

Outreach to Howard Hughes Center Commuters/Employees

October 7, 2008

Equity Office Properties conducted outreach to more than 500 commuters/employees all of whom participate in the Transportation Demand Management (TDM) program for Howard Hughes Center. The TDM program encourages employees to use alternative forms of transportation by providing incentives to help reduce congestion in Howard Hughes Center as well as the surrounding communities.

Equity Office Properties representatives spoke to employees, many of whom commute long distances to the Center, and introduced plans for residential and office buildings at Howard Hughes Center. The goal of the outreach effort was to inform employees and to encourage them to support a live/work/play environment that locates housing within walking distance to work.

Equity Office Properties received 102 support cards and 13 supportive video statements stating the reasons Howard Hughes Center employees welcome the plans for a live/work/play environment.

Supportive Video Statements from Howard Hughes Center Commuters/Employees

Elyse Steward

"I myself actually live in Palmdale but I stay in San Pedro during the week, but that's still a commute. It's about thirty to forty-five minute drive with traffic and there's always traffic. So if you put housing in this area, I think it would be great. Some people could walk...and if you build the residency around here, I'd probably move in tomorrow."

Leslie Burton

"Hi my name is Leslie Burton and I live close to Cheviot Hills. And I commute every day... about forty-five minutes depending on if traffic's bad to here to the Howard Hughes Center. And it would be nice to live in a location where you're right there at work, and the supermarket's right there, shopping center's right there."

Larry Waitley

"I work here. I don't live too far away, it's only 4 miles...and being here now, I can certainly attest to how much the savings on my car, my gas tank, how much that's come through. And saving another 4 miles would even be better I think."

Jeff Bryant

"I think it's a strong effort here you're trying to do. I think there's a benefit to it. I think it's a great location for people to do that [live/work/play environment]."

Preston Neal Jones

"If you know where the Howard Hughes Center is, and you know where Hollywood is, then you know why I am in favor of any living situation that would be closer by. And that would enable me not to lose a couple of hours every morning and another couple of hours every evening just getting to and from work."

Mike Juarez

"With the traffic nowadays and gas prices, this would be great. It is great. I see a lot of people living and biking and hiking. There are a lot of fun things to do around here. You are very close to downtown if you want to go back to the crowd. You're close to the beach; you're close to... attractions. Everything's close by. I've worked here for the last ten years and everything has been in walking distance or biking distance."

Linda Ford

"I am the administrator of a 66-person law firm, and we have a lot of employees that live in the outer-outline areas: Hollywood, Van Nuys...and Long Beach. And demographically a lot of the single ones, single employees are interested in relocating to a work and live environment because it cuts down on transportation costs and time that they're on the freeway or on the bus."

Christopher Young

"Well [the] kind of embodied community, and the closeness and the concept of community...really enriches ones lives...I can spend more time with people and less time on freeways. Sign me up."

Nikki Allen

"I just think it would save a lot of stress in everybody's lives. I mean, who wants to sit in their car everyday driving to work? So I think it'd be great. We all work here. We eat lunch here. A lot of us probably eat dinner here, shop across the street, workout at Spectrum. So why not just make it the whole package and live nearby? Save the driving for the weekends."

Denny Nguyen

"We're in a good area. Everything is within walking distance. You can go across the street, have a good meal, have a good place to hang out, and at the end of the day just go walk across the street and get back home."

"I'm going to tell them that I am for this project, because it's very convenient, everything is right at...your fingertips, and it's close to everything else too. It's just a great place to be, great place to work, a great place to live, everything."

Daniel Gutierrez

"I actually think that having a mixed-use development at Howard Hughes Center, where people can live near where they work, is an excellent idea. It pretty much takes away that burden of every morning, having to get up, drive your car, find transportation, deal with commutes that could be up to an hour. I mean, my own commute for instance is a 25- mile affair from East Long Beach to not too far from here, and it creates lots of time stress. It's just much better if you can live near where you work. So I've always been a fan of mixed-use development. And I think Howard Hughes Center, because of its diversity, shops, retail establishments, etc, I think it can provide an excellent opportunity for people to live and work and play..."

Macia Welty

"I think it's a great idea. I think that anything you can do to get people together and participate in something that's fun is a great idea."

Michelle Rudacille

"I live in Van Nuys and it takes me over an hour to go down the 405 to get here. And if I would have a place that I can live, that's close by, then it would be so much more convenient and I would save like ten hours a week actually. And I could go home for lunch if I wanted to."

Outreach to Public to Gather Sentiment on Project Plans

July 27, 2009

On July 27, Equity Office Properties launched an online comment page called "Howard Hughes Center Wants to Know" at www.hhcwantstoknow.com. The page was designed to solicit public comment on the plans to add two residential buildings and two office buildings to the existing Howard Hughes Center. While previous outreach efforts focused on local community groups, Howard Hughes Center commuters and employees, and business chambers, this online comment page was dedicated to reaching out to members of the general public who are interested in the future of the Howard Hughes Center.

In order to increase visibility of the comment page, Equity Office Properties reached out to Curbed LA – a prominent real estate blog that covers local development issues and news – to engage its audience. With 99% of their readers residing in the Greater Los Angeles region and 9% of whom work within the real estate industry, the audience demographics of Curbed LA fit the profile of stakeholders who can offer constructive comments on the Live/Work/Play plans.

Outside work park. Can work outside at a pic-nic table that has Ethernet access or WiFi access provided. Think Activision on Ocean Park Blvd has such a thing

#58 Agree (7) Disagree (0) On 08/11/2009 at 12:02pm by Nelson France

it is ridiculous that you charge $2 to park at your retail center. I live in Westchester and the parking charge honestly prevents me from visiting your center

#57 Agree (1) Disagree (0) On 08/10/2009 at 7:00am by Westchester

Stop charging $2 for parking. Business's in the HHC should at least validate like most other shopping destinations.

#53 Agree (1) Disagree (0) On 08/07/2009 at 10:17pm by Park4-Free

I would like to see more neon lights wrapping these plain as vanilla office boxes. Really liven up the 405.

#55 Agree (0) Disagree (0) On 08/07/2009 at 3:42pm by Hales-B-gone

I work in 6100 and unlike the 50th commenter, the lack of on-site showers doesn't keep me from my near-daily bike commute from Silver Lake -- but such facilities should definitely be incorporated in future plans. I would also encourage HHC to consider including a bike station modeled after the landmark one built in Long Beach (<http://www.bikestation.com/longbeach/index.asp>), which offers membership-based amenities such as 24-hour secured parking; bike sharing; rentals, a repair stand, air pumps, et cetera.

#54 Agree (0) Disagree (0) On 08/07/2009 at 3:01pm by Will Campbell

I say fight the residents, and build as high as possible. If this is ever going to become a real city, we need to build up, to have higher density. It will bring life to our streets, cafes, restaurants and other amenities. You're located right next to the freeway, so the traffic should not be an issue for existing residents.

Free, easy parking

#52 Agree (7) Disagree (7) On 08/07/2009 at 12:44pm by Ed

Sounds profitable for HHC, however I'm sure the monthly lease will increase, resulting in more companies moving out, including the company I worked for, which means me and my co-workers will be out of a job.

#57 Agree (0) Disagree (0) On 08/07/2009 at 11:48am by Angela Rosa

I work in 6701 and would love to ride my bike to work. But in order to do that, there needs to be a shower facility in my office. I used to have this perk when I worked in Santa Moinca, but now that my company is in Howard Hughes, I can't ride to work. I'm on the 13th floor of 6701.

#50 Agree (1) Disagree (0) On 08/05/2009 at 2:24pm by Almon

I think it's a great idea, but the planning has been poor. I think the development is too far along to make it work well. It's doable, just not what it could have been. HHC is on the edge of the development area. If you add housing, people are going to have to migrate from the other end to get to it. Ideally, the "services/entertainment" would be located in the middle. It would have been better if the HHC was located where the Sony and Pepperdine buildings are. The layout of the streets doesn't help. The people from Univision have to walk pretty far to get to the HHC. It's because of the weird on ramp to the 405 South they have to walk over. It also leaves a weird island on the inside of the "loop". I really don't know what you'd put there because access to it will be difficult. There's also a fairly busy street separating the businesses/school from HHC. Because of where the entrances are to the Sony and Pepperdine buildings, people end up in the middle of the block which encourages jaywalking across 4 lanes. The median helps people make it across safely, but it's still not good. Then there's the goofy street going by Spectrum. It's a long street that turns so there's no corner at which to cross. It's probably a half mile from crosswalk to crosswalk on that street. I guess the idea is that the long walk gets them warmed up for the exercise? A lot of what's in HHC is "fluff". No one needs to eat out, or go see movies all the time. They do need to go to the grocery store and get their clothes dry cleaned. The basics are missing from the development. Without them, people are going to be driving around anyways. I would agree that Condos would be a better choice than apartments. However, now there's a University in the complex. Apartments are pretty much a necessity now. It would be silly to promote a Live/Work/Play environment and then make it so a large population of complex are forced to live somewhere else. The buildings are gorgeous and the grounds are nice. They're good on their own and not as a bigger "unit". The layout is too segregated to have any cohesion. Trying to address it at this point would just be band aids. It's too late in the game for the concept at this location.

#45 Agree (7) Disagree (0) On 02/05/2009 at 1:17pm by Randal

Doing a better job with basics would be a great start. - The lowest flight of stairs of the parking structure North of the mall is so scary that some colleagues don't dare going there. - In the same parking structure, driving up requires driving around the whole structure for each level. That is really tedious every day. On the way down the same detour needs to be taken on the lowest level. There are signs left over that suggest a shortcut used to exist. - The building elevators frequently malfunction. The elevator door won't close etc. This is after they have been maintained! - The bathroom in the office suit is so dark and 'dumpy' that colleagues regularly joke about getting mugged there. The air vent in it is really noisy. Every once in a while, something happens and it starts screeching at a high pitch. It sounds like standing next to an open window at the orient express, where one can hear the thumping of the rails below and things swooshing past the window. After a few days, maintenance will fix it until it happens again. To not be completely negative, the view is great. The building employees are exceptionally friendly and remember your name after the first meeting. The rod like plants on the walkway are really neat.

-Mixed use condos & apartments -Large community gardens on site abundant fruit trees -Convenience store -Better bicycle accommodations for those who bike to work at the HH Center (storage racks, free showers, etc)
-Wide pedestrian mall/walk/bridge connecting residences to commercial areas
-Day care -Dog park

#47 Agree (2) Disagree (0) On 02/03/2009 at 9:26pm by CJ

Integrating your work and living location is ideal for the Los Angeles area. It will cut down on traffic and pollution. Even if the tenants don't work in the Howard/Hughes Center, the area is desirable to live in. Having amenities within walking distance is always a bonus. I would suggest having some sort of market or convenient store incorporated into the design as well to allow for tenants to have a quick place to pick up anything. I would love to see this get built.

#48 Agree (1) Disagree (0) On 02/03/2009 at 5:04pm by Claudia

I have always wondered why there isn't residential in this development. If it had been here three years ago, I would have seriously considered buying something here. If this project is built, it should be designed to cater to young professionals - the type of people who work at Howard Hughes Center. I don't see many elderly/retired people here. More restaurants and retail on the first level of the residential buildings would be great!

#49 Agree (7) Disagree (0) On 02/03/2009 at 11:57am by John

Reasonably priced Condos are definitely a great idea

#44 Agree (1) Disagree (0) On 08/03/2009 at 11:51am by Christine Fitzgerald

There is excess inventory of condos in the West LA market for the next 5 years or so ... and mostly still overpriced as so many were built and sold during the bubble. Design apartments suitable for longer-term family tenants - 2 to 3 BR, 2BA, with W/D - and include daycare as others have suggested. Good tenants will pay a bit of a premium for housing that includes in-unit quality-of-life amenities. This development does need to include a small branch market a la Pavilions

#43 Agree (1) Disagree (0) On 08/03/2009 at 11:50am by Chacha'

A store or drugstore of some kind would be nice. No where walk to pick up small items if needed without getting in your car

#42 Agree (4) Disagree (0) On 08/03/2009 at 11:31am by Joanne Sydow

I think a mixed use approach - condos and apartments would be desirable. It just makes sense for business. There is somewhat of a dirth of new affordable residential units in the area, therefor if these units would be more on the affordable side that would be helpful to the community

#41 Agree (3) Disagree (0) On 08/03/2009 at 11:10am by Jg

I would like daycare available in the area. I definitely think condominiums is the way to go. I do not think apartments is a good idea as it brings in different groups. My perception is not good. Perhaps, senior living for apartments is a good idea. The price range for condos should be $200-500K. Daycare should be newborn-4 years

I would like to see condos over apartments. It would be nice to have a daycare facility in or near the condos. It would be beneficial to include an exercise room, pool and laundry facilities. Senior housing as well.

#27 Agree (2) Disagree (0) On 07/27/2009 at 1:31pm by Mercy Galvan

Yes. I think it would be a good idea. Would save money, commute time, it would also bring good revenues to the Fox Hills/Culver City area

#36 Agree (1) Disagree (0) On 07/27/2009 at 1:29pm by Edwin Torres

Sounds like an interesting idea. Would be great for our doctors in training to live close-by. I'm sure several of them would be interested each year for convenience purposes

#35 Agree (1) Disagree (0) On 07/27/2009 at 1:25pm by Emily

We train 8 doctors per year at our facility. It would be great to have reasonable rental units right near by that we can refer them to

#34 Agree (0) Disagree (0) On 07/27/2009 at 1:23pm by Karen Mohr

Sounds like a good idea. Prices should be kept reasonable. I know a lot of people who work in the neighborhood need homes closer to work. Maybe a shuttle to the local office buildings. I would also support day care, exercise room and Starbucks in the building. P.S. - senior housing would be a good idea

#33 Agree (2) Disagree (0) On 07/27/2009 at 1:20pm by Employee

If housing is to be built at HHC, hopefully it will be affordable - not low income, but affordable for middle income residents and pet friendly!

Howard Hughes Center Wants to Know? Oh Really?

Friday, August 7, 2009, by Dakota

Last week, Equity Office Properties, the developer of the planned mixed-use component of the Howard Hughes Center launched a new web site solely for the intention of taking comments and suggestion for its Westside project, which consists of two residential buildings and two commercial buildings. Among other things, one guy--who bikes to work-- is requesting showers in his office tower, while someone else is asking for a drug store. Meanwhile, it sounds like those unhappy homeowners may have helped knock down the height of proposed 24-story tower at 6055 Center Drive. In an email to Curbed, a rep for the project writes that 6055 Center Drive is "no longer 24 stories - it will be 18 stories. The number of living units for both residential buildings is currently being worked out. The change on the height came as a result of feedback from and outreach with many local community groups around the area." The rep also notes he'd love to hear from Curbed readers' thoughts on the project, so chime in on the site if you've got something to say. UPDATE: Photos updated so you know what you're look at Stop charging $2 for parking. Your mall sucks and should not cost to park there. I only go there to buy work shirts and shoes from Nordstrom Rack and I cringe every time I pay $2 big ones to park in that crappy garage.
