Comments for Public Posting: Hello, and let's combat climate change and animal suffering at the same time! The quickest and most effective way to do it individually is to leave animal flesh and by products out of your life. Fortunately, this option is not only getting easier to do, but becoming increasingly more delicious! Check out vegan foods for human health and for the sake of our planet, too. When you start to care about global warming at an individual level, you realize people who are smart enough to avoid chicken/pig/cow etc.. don't eat cardboard tasting food or salads every day. There is a reason vegans and vegetarians are fast becoming a substantial population: we love our diet! Would love to see more policy promoting vegan lifestyles and their consequent benefits for humans, the Earth we all share and of course, our animals. Thank You, Karen Emanuel
