Dear City Council,

Last Friday could not have made me more proud to be a transplant of Los Angeles! When I read the City Council voted 14-0 to adopt a resolution to endorse Meatless Monday, I knew I lived in a city that really cared about educating the public on a more healthy, environmentally friendly way of life. Now let us not stop at just an endorsement. We need to show the City of L.A. is not just about lip service, but about action! I ask the city of L.A. to request all public schools in L.A. to adopt a lunch menu that is meat free on all Mondays for the benefit of our kids health.

If the city of L.A. encouraged public schools of L.A. to adopt a meat free menu on all Mondays, over 670,700 students lives would be impacted. The health benefits are inarguable. A diet that supports more fruit and vegetables and less meat decreases the risks of diabetes, obesity, heart disease and cancer! If we truly care about the students, as the City Council clearly does, we must take this endorsement to the public schools.

I look forward to your response and am more than happy to provide my assistance in any way to help.

Sincerely,

Thomas Guzowski
