

Dear Members of the Planning & Land Use Management Committee,

As you know, the Baseline Mansionization Ordinance (BMO) has failed. Egregiously oversized houses continue to spoil the scale and character of single-family neighborhoods. Faircrest Heights (Council District 10) is one of them.

Neighborhoods all over the city – including ours – are clamoring for relief, requesting RFA overlays to protect us from reckless development. Even with recently-announced staff increases, keeping up with that demand will be a challenge. Enforcing city code across a patchwork of overlays could be a real headache, too. Councilmember Koretz has offered a smart and sensible solution with his motion to amend the BMO. While his motion would not preclude ordinances tailored to specific neighborhoods, the amendments will almost certainly eliminate a big part of the problem – and fast.

As you know, PLUM will consider Councilmember Koretz's Motion this coming Tuesday. I urge you to give it your full support.

- The base floor area ratio for R-1 lots is excessive. Ratchet it down.
- Eliminate the pointless 'green' building bonus. Building sensibly sized homes does much more to shrink our carbon footprint than bamboo flooring and other so-called 'green' building practices, which are required by code anyway.
- Attached garages add 400 square feet of bloat and eliminate the driveways that provide an essential buffer between lots. Eliminate the exemption and count this square footage.
- Eliminate the other self-defeating design bonuses for items like double-height entryways and balconies, which add hundreds of square feet of uncounted bulk and still leave us with McMansions that loom over our neighbors' homes.
- Make the project approval process transparent to the public.

Thoughtful development puts a premium on environmental and economic sustainability, neighborhood integrity, and a sense of community. These simple amendments could be prepared and adopted quickly, to protect neighborhoods being ravaged by unchecked, short-term real estate speculation and reckless development. They will allow renovations, expansions, and new construction that can accommodate modern family life while respecting the scale and character of established neighborhoods.

Every day brings more damage to more treasured L.A. neighborhoods, and we need your help desperately, and soon.

Sincerely,

Roxann Smith
