We Protest

The City of Los Angeles is getting ridiculous in the fees that are being charged to its residents and this is just another one.

If I am not mistaken when we started the trash recycling, we were told the amount of rubbish that would be recycled as a result would eventually result in the city making money off of it and eventually would lower the cost of our trash pick-up fees. THAT NEVER HAPPENED.

We haven't had a street cleaner in our neighborhood for a long time. We used to have street sweeping every two weeks.

We reduced the amount of water being used, let our trees and lawns die, never hose down the driveway, take less showers, do less laundry and never use the dishwasher and now you want to increase the rates.

Maybe you should sit down and see what you have to work with, cut absolutely unnecessary expenses such as: Cars, expense accounts, luncheons, trips, etc in order to manage your budget. That is exactly what we have all had to do. No new cars or unnecessary driving, no dining out and of course no trips anywhere or vacations in order to live within our means.
