As a Westwood Gardens home owner of 18-year, I am dismayed by the proposed zoning code building/remodeling restrictions, and left wondering who these new restrictions serve, because they aren't serving my family needs or existing home owners around me. My wife and I have been pleased to see the number of new, tastefully developed homes in our area, and fear these building code changes will curb this trend and cause our beloved neighborhood to stagnate or decline as growing family leave our area. We have growing children who require more space. We love where we live and were planning to tastefully adding-on to our home (as many of our neighbors have) but these restrictions will force us to sell to find the space we need. This is unfair to us and anyone else with a growing family in our area. We are also very concerned our home's value will stagnate while the larger homes built/remodeled before the zoning code changing around us are sold at a premium. The proposed zoning code restriction have gone too far and no one wins. Please reconsider these new restrictions. The previous code limits curbed the over-building and seems reasonable. Please, we don't want to move because we are unable to adapt our home to our growing family's needs.

these ordinances are going way too far. City is not considering the growth of the families and the fact that many kids are now living with their parents.

I want to build a guest cottage for my husband's aging parents. Under the current law I can build a 372 sq. ft. house, if the law reduces the size of livable space, we will only be able to build a 68 sq. foot house. This would be inhumane for a living space!

I believe this legislation will impact the value of the neighborhoods. I believe there is a better solution
