REGARDING CITY COUNCIL FILE #17-0453:

I do NOT believe that sending Billy the elephant to a "sanctuary" is in his best interest. I KNOW for a fact that he is receiving exemplary care from the staff at the L.A. Zoo. Please do NOT support the effort to send him away from his loving home at the Los Angeles Zoo. DON'T allow him to become a pawn in the extremist Animal Rights agenda aimed at removing ALL animals from "captivity".

Sincerely:

Ernest F. Rose.

Dear Members of the Los Angeles Arts, Parks & River Committee:

Please DO NOT support the motion to Release Billy the Elephant to sanctuary. Billy needs to remain in his loving home at The Los Angeles Zoo, in an environment where he can live out the remainder of his life in peace and dignity. The zoo provides the best care for all of its wildlife, and to send him to a sanctuary where none of that is guaranteed or even matched is unconscionable. Many other animals removed from zoos suffer at these sanctuaries that have poor care, do not allow the owners to visit their animals, and most of them die within a year of staying there. Nosey the elephant is one such example. She was happy with the Leibel family, until she stolen from her home and placed into an unsafe trailer to be taken to The Elephant Sanctuary, which has a history of letting their elephants die due to their 'hands-off' approach to elephants. This motion is supported heavily by animal right groups and extremists such as ALF and ELF. They do not care for facts no matter how you engage them and their ultimate goal is to remove animals from human care entirely. That means no pets, no conservation, no meat or dairy, no breeding of endangered species, and not only that, but their thinking endangers the ecosystem in which we live. Again, DO NOT surrender Billy the elephant to sanctuary. Let him live in the zoo and drop this case.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Kimberly Barlow

Please Do Not Support the Motion to Release Billy the Elephant to Sanctuary.

Billy needs to remain in his loving home at The Los Angeles Zoo, in an environment where he can live out the remainder of his life in peace and dignity being cared for by people he knows and has long time relationship with.

It is a known FACT that Elephants develop deep feelings for their longtime long term caretakers.

Please don't continue to allow him and yourselves to be pawns in the animal rights extremist's agenda to remove all animals from human care.

He is comfortable and well cared for where he is at the LA Zoo...

His zoo caretakers are trained & skilled in elephant husbandry and Billy knows them and has a long time relationship with them.

It is a known FACT that Elephants develop deep feelings for their longtime long term caretakers.

The emotion pain and distress Billy will feel being moved to is cruel and heartless and unnecessary.

At the Animal rights run PAWS Sanctuary there is no true care for the animals only ideology. Unlike the LA Zoo that is committed to their own mission statement: healthy correct care based on proven studied animal (elephant) husbandry principles.

There is NO GOOD REASON TO MOVE BILLY... The emotion pain and distress Billy will feel being moved is cruel and heartless.

This move is not being advocated for in his best interest, just another score for animal rights ideology.

PAWS is a TB infected animal rights so called sanctuary just as bad as another animal rights run so called scamtuary.

Please Do Not Support the Motion to Release Billy the Elephant to Sanctuary.

Zoos play a large and important role in animal conservation and the extremists demanding Billy's movement are ignorant to the reality of the situation.

Billy is in the place where he is comfortable and surrounded by people he knows. He won't like moving to a strange place with strange people any more than you or I would.

Good afternoon,

My purpose in writing today is to discuss the importance of freeing the elephant Billy from the LA Zoo. For starters look at the condition of his habitat, a small, hard concrete floor with a small waterfall. In the wild elephants are in huge herds of family members walking over hundreds of miles every single day. With a limited amount of space this can lead to an enormous amount of stress on poor Billy, which can also cause significant health problems such as arthritis, foot problems from the limited exercise and mental problems. Severe frustration can cause Billy to hurt himself or his keepers. A true sanctuary is a place of refuge where captive wildlife can live in peace and harmony for the rest of their lives. A true sanctuary respects the integrity of individual animals, providing safe, healthy and secure refuge in enclosures specifically designed for the unique animal which it supports.

Next we look at the abuse of elephants in captivity. True sanctuaries do not breed or exploit the animals for commercial purposes including, use of elephants for entertainment. The Los Angeles Zoo sees Billy as a way to make more money because of his species. The Los Angeles Zoo is funded by the state of California, plus all the money from admissions goes right into the paychecks of the staff. A true elephant sanctuary such as the Performing Animal Welfare Society (PAWS) are given no government assistance at all, everything falls on volunteers who have the passion behind them to look after elephants and donations from the caring public, donations pay the bills, maintenance of the property, food, extensive medical care and security. A facility based solely on donations from the public is doing this work purely for the love of elephants and for the purpose of giving these majestic animals a chance to live the way they were supposed to live before the opportunity to live like real elephants was stolen from them.

Isolation can be hard on any species, especially when in the wild elephants stay with their families for their entire lives. Billy has lived in isolation for years with only the sight of other elephants separated from him, Billy's only company is his keepers from behind the fence or the screaming guests at the zoo in which he has no way to get away from. Moving Billy from the zoo and sending him to a sanctuary will let him live with actual African Elephants, he can interact with them and have his own family herd, others of his species to look out for him. At the same time he can roll around in the mud, go swimming in an actual lake as opposed to his little rock water fall at the LA Zoo, Rub himself on the trees and most importantly walk on soft pure grass.

Please consider all these very important points when making the correct decision of sending Billy to a proper sanctuary. A place where he is given the true elephants life, not being held captive in a small, concrete enclosure with no contact with other elephants. Plus think of the expert care that a sanctuary will give him, everyone who volunteers at a sanctuary is doing it for the love of the animals and every penny earned is going to provide the best care, thank you for reading and I hope you make the correct decision and send Billy to a sanctuary.

I write to ask you to please SUPPORT the motion to free Billy, the solitary elephant at the zoo, and allow him to go to a sanctuary immediately. He is showing signs of psychological stress that have been brought on by his current living situation and being in solitary confinement for so many years in an unnatural setting. This is cruel punishment for a being who has done nothing wrong and deserves much better.

You can provide that "much better" by letting him go to an approved sanctuary. Please, please do so! The zoo making money at the expense of this animal's health and welfare is, unfair, unkind, and cruel.

Thank you.

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

30 years in prison is enough. He's served his time and was never guilty of anything.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. lisa blanck

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Megan Goude

Billy needs to be released to a sanctuary. NOW!
Elephants need room to walk, they need socialization with other elephants! He is showing signs of depression and stress! Please move him, after 30 years, he deserves to be retired to a sanctuary.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

In terms of animals being in zoos to “teach” the public, studies have determined that visitors to zoos stand at an animal display an average of 47 seconds, and most of that time is spent yelling at the animal, taking pictures, and staring: very few read the information posted, and generally, not much is learned at all. Billy is an elephant, one of THE most social of animals. Imagine being confined to one room of space for the rest of your life, with no social exchanges. Send Billy to a sanctuary.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

NO WILD ANIMAL BELONGS IN A CAGE OR A TANK! THEY ARE STOLEN FROM THEIR HOMES AND FORCED TO LIVE A LIFE THAT IS UNNATURAL FOR THEM. THEY LIVE SAD AND LONELY LIVES. THIS SHOULD BE AGAINST THE LAW. THIS IS DEFINITELY ANIMAL ABUSE AND IT NEEDS TO STOP. PLEASE LET THIS ELEPHANT GO TO A SANCTUARY WHERE HE WILL BE ABLE TO LIVE IN PEACE FOR THE REST OF HIS DAYS. HE WILL GET THE CARE AND COMPASSION THAT HE DESERVES AND HAS BEEN DENIED TO HIM.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. lisna dhsks

ANIMALS DESERVE BETTER - shut down all zoos, They are prisons for a lifetime for animals - to entertain bored and uninformed stupid people. Everyone who has a heart and soul, sees the suffering of these animals - how one can there enjoying a Sunday stroll ??? For me, completely incomprehensible.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

It is unacceptable in the 21st century to imprison elephants in these small, barren enclosures. Free the elephants to sanctuaries and let them experience some quality of life in their remaining years.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Towania Parker

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Josie Torres

Lets stop the unnecessary, planet destroying act of animal killing, cruelty in any way and slaughters, for they exist for our own good not in the way of these cruelty but by balancing the ecology and playing their role in the nature. They have equal rights to live a happy and healthy life and have equal space in nature and human community with peace.

Billy needs open space, acreage to roam and enrichment to keep him mentally stimulated. He should also be kept with his own kind and not be subjected to public display anymore. Why the hell hasn't the zoo done more to improve his life? They opened a new expensive exhibit that caused millions and yet Billy is still visibly unhappy and looks completely depressed. It's time that LA wakes up to the reality that keeping large animals in small spaces is cruel and needs to end. Billy deserves to be placed in a sanctuary where he can act like a normal elephant and be with his own kind. He is a prisoner at the zoo and something needs to be done to free him. And, even know I'm a huge fan of Betty white - she needs to keep her trap shut on all things animals. She may be a animal lover, but Billy is not being treated right and she is doing him a disservice by promoting the elephant enclosure. Stick to what you know - acting and or educate yourself on elephants. Go to Africa ta to see how they live.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Angela Hill

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Angela Hill

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. luz miryam Guevara puentes

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Edward Plaza

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Rachael Chetto

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Ssndra Serrato

This is outrageous! why would this animal be treated like a lap dog?
it's a Elephant! it needs room to move around if you people cant do that then give them to some one who Will! give him a Habitat he can be happy in and let him be with other Elephants! what are you people thinking?

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Nisa Wallace

I think all animals deserve a healthy and happy life. Unfortunately, many live their whole lives in tiny spaces and do not have the lives God intended them to have. FREE BILLY!!

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Nicole Welp

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Marc Orfanos

This type of zoo and thinking behind it is from a time that no longer exists. There is no excuse for this now that we know better.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

“‘Free Billy’’, the wind sighs,
“Free Billy’’, the mountains scream,
‘Free Billy’’, the pounds the ocean surf,
‘Free Billy’’, babbles the trees,
“Free Billy’, Free Billy, Free Billy’, is the enchanting song sung by Willy who knows Billy’s woe,
“Free Billy’, ‘Free
Billy’’, set him FREE!

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Margaret Lamperski

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Nanvy Moll

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Monta Barnes

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Phyllis Clifford-Shamblin

A sanctuary is to an elephant, like a vacation is to a human.

If the zoo cannot provide adequate and thorough care that an elephant needs, it would be logical as well as ethical, to place the elephant where it can be provided adequate and thorough care.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Dear Michael, and all Members of the Los Angeles Arts, Parks & River Committee:

REGARDING CITY COUNCIL FILE #17-0453, I am asking you to please SUPPORT the Motion to Release Billy the Elephant to Sanctuary. Billy needs to be released as soon as possible to an appropriate sanctuary environment where he can live out the remainder of his life in peace and dignity.

Mrs Cecile Bender,

resident for more than 22 years in Los Angeles (Studio City more precisely)
and student in Child Development at L.A.V.C

REGARDING CITY COUNCIL FILE #17-0453

Dear members of the Los Angeles Arts, Parks and Rivers Committee,

Please reject the motion to place Billy the Elephant in an animal rights 'sanctuary'. These 'sanctuaries' are fake to say the least, have no qualifications in professional elephant care and husbandry, but instead have a long record of sick elephants and elephant deaths.

Billy needs to remain in his loving home at the Los Angeles Zoo, in a nurturing environment where he can live in good health, happiness, peace, and abundance. Please consider what is best for Billy, and let him remain at LA Zoo.

Thank you,

Lalipa Nilubol (Bangkok, Thailand)

Dear Councilmember Espinosa:

Please do not support the motion to release "Billy the elephant" to a sanctuary. Billy needs to remain in his loving home at the Los Angeles Zoo, in an environment where he can live out the remainder of his life in peace and dignity.

Please don't continue to allow him to be a pawn in the animal rights extremists's agenda to remove all animals from human care. I can assure you that animal welfare is the farthest thing from their minds, and many have absolutely no experience in dealing with endangered species. The Los Angeles Zoo takes extremely good and loving care of Billy, as they do all their animals. Is this not what we want for all animals in captive care?

Please, do not support this motion. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Jodi Holcomb, DVM

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Dirothy Theobald

Elephants in captivity, especially in zoos, are used for one thing and one thing only. Profit. Despite claims of conservation, the truth is that zoos are a corporate business and conservation and animal welfare is not going to ever be their top priority. It's time to #Freebilly.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Dear Members of the Los Angeles Arts, Parks & River Committee:

Please Do Not Support the Motion to Release Billy the Elephant to Sanctuary. Billy needs to remain in his loving home at The Los Angeles Zoo, in an environment where he can live out the remainder of his life in peace and dignity. Please don't continue to allow him to be a pawn in the animal rights extremist's agenda to remove all animals from human care. Billy has amazing care in a beautiful facility where he gives families the opportunity to see such an amazing animal up close, no one will be able to do that and you all will lose an amazing animal ambassador.

Thank you, sincerely,

Kaitlyn Campbell

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Martin Deehan

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Naomi Baron

Please Do Not Support the Motion to Release Billy the Elephant to Sanctuary. Billy needs to remain in his loving home at The Los Angeles Zoo, in an environment where he can live out the remainder of his life in peace and dignity. Please don't continue to allow him to be a pawn in the animal rights extremist's agenda to remove all animals from human care.

Sanctuaries have less resources, less oversight, and less guidelines to operate than the zoo. They "sell" themselves to an uneducated public by using phrases like private, no breeding, no shows...when in reality, they live in barns and exhibits just like a zoo, they have caretakers just like a zoo and they get fed in the same place every day...unlike a zoo. Zoos have intense enrichment and training programs designed to stimulate and encourage natural behaviors. Sanctuaries just let their animals sit in their enclosure all day.

Please use common sense...do not give in to the propaganda of "sanctuary" versus "zoo." At best, they are the same. At worst, you are taking away from what he has known for years and giving him a lower quality of life.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
Sean Ramsdell

As someone who works with elephants in Thailand I think it is vital that the council recognize and respect the professional expertise that the Zoo gives Billy. I am a great supporter of having ambassadors like Billy accessible to the public where people can be educated about elephants with facts. Moving him to a sanctuary means the public will no longer be able to see him, he will be alone, the standard of care will not be the same as he has now, and he will be exploited for donations for the running of the sanctuary with no benefit to anyone but those who run the place.

Thank you,

sincerely,

Messrs Espinosa and Villanueva,

Please enter this comment and its attachment into Council File 17-1125, for consideration by our Public Works and Gang Reduction Committee, Transportation Committee, GM Seleta Reynolds, LADOT, et al.

Honorable Councilmembers,

While motorized scooters leave a carbon footprint demonstrably dirtier than that of human-powered "last-mile" vehicles, they can still help to relieve urban traffic congestion and, thereby, help reduce fossil fuel emissions. There is no question about their positive potential.

Recent introduction of dockless electric scooters (e-scooters) into many cities has raised many questions - safety, accessibility and well-regulated motoring topping the list. Human enforcement of personal transport regulation, both with autos and other vehicles - including human-powered ones, is always an overwhelming challenge. The beauty of pre-installed safety and regulatory tools is self-evident, both as to their effectiveness and the relief they provide from undue burden on law enforcement and emergency medical service providers. Automobile mirrors, seat belts and other protective and preventive tools serve as universal examples.

Corporate e-scooter operators know that existing software can protect riders and the public while accurately preventing violations from occurring. So do thousands upon thousands - millions - of information technology professionals, any number of whom can easily and timely develop relevant protective tools. LADOT appears to understand this as well. Indeed, it's already been done: In the above-referenced Council File today sits a July 12 submission by a purveyor of just such technology. That letter's illuminations affirm the public benefit that relevant software can provide today - if only e-scooter operators would deploy it.

Just as government was called on to require automobile manufacturers to deploy safety tools, you are called on today by public safety and necessity to require safety tool deployment from e-scooter operators. E-SCOOTER OPERATOR LICENSING ENTITLEMENTS MUST DEPEND ON OPERATOR PROVISION OF SELF-REGULATING SAFETY TOOLS. There is no question about their viability and their positive potential.

Los Angeles wants to be a leader in diverse alternative transportation. The way to do this is not to run headlong into a divisive abyss of frustration and inevitable lawsuits but to define and implement a plan. At least half a dozen US cities have imposed temporary bans on e-scooters until such time as relevant regulation could be crafted. To lead, Los Angeles must draw from the experience of others. I say this understanding how far-reaching LADOT's research has been to date.

As our elected representatives, you are responsible to do justice to that work.

Mr. Koretz's recent motion provides breathing room to do that planning. NO ACTION SHOULD BE TAKEN TO PASS 17-1125 UNTIL MR. KORETZ'S MOTION IS FULLY CONSIDERED.

What's currently wrong with 17-1125? The public comment process (gulp!) is a good place to start with a reminder: During my past service on Venice Neighborhood Council's (VNC's) Land Use and Planning Committee, I learned the fallacy of "straw votes." Hundreds of virtually identical comments tell only the convenience with which someone can click on a keyboard or keypad. Buried in the Council File's mountain of repetition are several individually-crafted comments, with positive regulation considerations.

Among them is one from VNC's Ocean Front Walk Committee Chair, Colleen Saro - a real-life expert in the issues of e-scooter safety, rider behavior, enforcement practice and overall use. Her six recommendations are on-target. Some of them are ideal for software implementation.

Russell Howe's letter expresses obvious and astute observations shared by hundreds or thousands of your constituents.

Comments from helmet user David Brundige and Obie Garcia also provide valid and valuable input that is worth folding into your considerations, as is expertise from such organizations as Los Angeles Walks, Walk Long Beach, California Walks, Walk San Francisco and others.

You may be aware of Santa Monica's newly-released recommendations relating to its pilot program (https://www.smgov.net/uploadedFiles/Departments/PCD/Transportation/Shared%20Mobility%20Selection%20Committee%20Memo_09072018_Final.pdf). I strongly recommend that you assign committee staffers to review and report on it - again, BEFORE TAKING ANY ACTION TO PASS 17-1125.

Finally, please refer to the attached document, which can also be viewed via the following link: http://www.veniceworks.net/scooters/1807_Scooters.pdf

The first of the document's two photo sets presents examples of witnessed violations of one or more municipal, state and/or Federal safety, public right-of-way and/or Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) requirements along the following Venice, CA, route: Venice Blvd. west from Oakwood Ave. to Ocean Front Walk; Venice Beach and its bicycle path; Ocean Front Walk and other prohibited areas between Windward and Venice Blvd.

The second photo set documents approximately ten percent of an estimated two thousand-plus violations witnessed and documented along similar routes between July 4 and July 25, 2018.

For every documented violation witnessed, at least three that were witnessed went undocumented. For every violation or combination of violations witnessed, some unknown higher number is believed to have occurred inside and outside the subject area.

These and additional images were obtained during several one-to-two-hour walking tours through the subject area; they represent a significantly small sample of safety and regulatory violations occurring each day in that area.

N.B.: While the referenced photo material may help facilitate review for pending regulation, it simply displays examples of the broad range of violations along one general walking route, and should not be construed to represent the ratio of, say, tandem riding instances to unsafe scooter parking instances - much less an estimated percent of total violations (absent aggregation of available data from e-scooter operators and their customers). Only a well-monitored, pre-licensing pilot program can do that.

Updates to this catalog can be requested by contacting e.scooter@veniceworks.net.

Thank you for your public service. Please help to restore the necessary balance between public benefit and private enterprise.

Sincerely,
Jed Pauker
Venice

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. haidee solis

Dear Members of the Los Angeles Arts, Parks & River Committee: Please Do Not Support the Motion to Release Billy the Elephant to Sanctuary. Billy needs to remain in his loving home at The Los Angeles Zoo, in an environment where he can live out the remainder of his life in peace and dignity. Please don't continue to allow him to be a pawn in the animal rights extremist's agenda to remove all animals from human care.

REGARDING CITY COUNCIL FILE #17-0453
DO NOT SUPPORT THE MOTION TO MOVE BILLY

To whom it may truly concern,

As a resident of Los Angeles, my first memory of an elephant was my first grade field trip to the city's zoo. A young stud named Billy wore through my mind, and ultimately my heart, as I passed through the grade levels and college.

Today, as an LA Zoo educator, I have the privilege to teach and converse with my community about that very elephant. Billy inspires children and adults alike. I can say that with confidence because he has inspired me.

To move Billy from his home would not only be a great disservice to him, but also the community that learns from him.

As a top tier, accredited institution, the zoo provides Billy with an expansive habitat with everything he needs to be an elephant: varied terrain, hills, deep pools, waterfalls, and opportunities for forage and play.

He has built a bond with his keepers, who have a lifetime's worth of actual experience working with and caring for pachyderms. The same keepers who got up before the sun rose on this morning of Sunday, July 29, 2018 and every morning preceding to feed, exercise, bathe, and stimulate him.

To say he does not have interaction with the girls is a blatant lie, simply because I see it every day, week, and month of the year.

The zoo has several veterinarians on grounds and on call 24/7, which most institutions, unfortunately, cannot afford.

Millions of people visit him every year and are inspired to help his species' survival in the wild. Billy is a beloved ambassador. I have conversations with children that speak of their future as a wildlife researcher or an elephant veterinarian because of him and our girls.

If Billy is moved to a sanctuary, some families will undoubtedly lose that opportunity. The LA Zoo is affordable. Traveling with children on a fixed income to Tennessee or Northern California or wherever is not.

I urge you to look past the extreme attempt to use this elephant as a way to end zoos and the connection our community shares with animals.

I urge you to visit the zoo and see our care demonstration, and talk to the individuals who have dedicated their life to this animal.

I urge you to open your mind to a simple conversation.

A conversation I have just about every day.

A conversation about a very special elephant.

Please do not support the motion to move Billy the elephant to a sanctuary.

I beg of you.

Thank you for your time,
Darren "D.J." Bueno, a resident of Winnetka

Dear Members of the Los Angeles Arts, Parks & River Committee:

I implore you to please SUPPORT the Motion to Release Billy the Elephant to Sanctuary. It is clear that the zoo has not been able to provide this elephant with the minimum proper care and environmental needs to keep him healthy and stable. Simply being alive is not a measure of quality of life. Billy needs to be released as soon as possible to an appropriate sanctuary environment where he can live out the remainder of his life in peace and dignity.

Thank you for your time and consideration!

Dear Members of the Los Angeles Arts, Parks & River Committee:

Please SUPPORT the Motion to Release Billy the Elephant to Sanctuary.

Elephant after elephant, captivity kills elephants. We expect more of our officials in Los Angeles never mind California.

Billy has paid his dues. He NEVER should have had to suffer captivity in the first place.

Billy needs to be released as soon as possible to an appropriate sanctuary environment where he can live out the remainder of his life in peace and dignity.

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. christa link

Dear Members of the Los Angeles Arts, Parks & River Committee:

Please Do Not Support the Motion to Release Billy the Elephant to Sanctuary. Billy needs to remain in his loving home at The Los Angeles Zoo, in an environment where he can live out the remainder of his life in peace and dignity. Please don't continue to allow him to be a pawn in the animal rights extremist's agenda to remove all animals from human care. Sanctuaries are nothing but death camps for animals especially elephants. The sanctuary makes millions of of lying to donors, requiring the animal to have surgery when not needed, and then neglects the animal that then really has foot problems ect. In zoos especially LA Zoo has specialized care for elephants and have individual elephant care programs in place for the elephants. Keep Billy in LA

If you have any questions or concerns please do not hesitate to call or email.

Dear Members of the Los Angeles Arts, Parks & River Committee:

Please DO NOT support the Motion to release Billy the Elephant to a sanctuary.

I have been a resident of Los Angeles County for more than 60 years, and I was a volunteer at the Los Angeles Zoo for 26 years. I knew Billy when he first came to Los Angeles at age-4. The Los Angeles Zoo is his loving home and he should be entitled to live out the remainder of his life in the environment that is familiar to him. I can personally attest that Billy is loved and cared for in the most respectful manner.

Please do not continue to allow Billy to be a pawn in the animal rights extremist's agenda to remove all animals from human care. He is an ambassador for his species and a treasure for the citizens and visitors of Los Angeles to visit, admire and enjoy.

I intend to ask my friends to join me in sending their emails in support of Billy remaining at the Los Angeles Zoo to you as Members of the Los Angeles Arts, Parks & River Committee-- REGARDING CITY COUNCIL FILE #17-0453.

People can not truly learn about an animal unless they can see it and "experience" the majesty. Elephants in native lands are dwindling in numbers. We need the public to recognize the international plight, and be inspired to participate in the species survival. There are international organizations in place that need our support. Billy is a symbol for the species at large, and a visual reminder to learn and appreciate the magnificence of this extremely intelligent and multi-faceted creature.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Debra Buhler

Dear Members of the Los Angeles Arts, Parks & River Committee:

Please do not allow yourselves to be harassed into motioning/supporting sending Billy to PAWS or any other poorly run, TB infected Sanctuary. Billy deserves to remain in his lovely, spacious 6 acre home of over 30 years. He is well cared for, loved and thriving where he is! Do what is best for Billy, and that is absolutely to stay in a professionally run zoological facility instead of a poorly run "sanctuary" which doesn't even come close to the high quality care/environment Billy has today.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

~Dr. Angela Pitkin

Dear Members of the Los Angeles Arts, Parks & River Committee:

I have been a major donor to the Los Angeles Zoo and Botanical Gardens for the past four years. In addition to my support for the zoo, I have also volunteered with a variety of animal causes outside the zoo for the past twenty years or more.

I am writing to urge you NOT to support the Motion to Release Billy the Elephant to Sanctuary. I have seen the deep connection Billy has with his dedicated staff at the LA Zoo, and I have witnessed firsthand the tender and thoughtful care he receives in his home there. Remaining in his loving home at The Los Angeles Zoo will allow Billy to continue to receive the best care possible, in an environment that was specifically designed with his health and happiness in mind. The heated, padded floors of his barn and soft sand of his six-acre enclosure ensure that he can walk comfortably and naturally, protecting the delicate bones of his feet. The trees, puzzle boxes, water features, and contact with his keepers provide stimulation and enrichment throughout the day. And the close proximity of a female herd allows him daily contact and communication with other elephants while still maintaining his own space, just as bachelor elephants do in the wild. Billy was orphaned in Malaysia at the age of four; Tina, Jewel, Shaunzi and his keepers are his family.

As an animal advocate I am committed to supporting what is best for Billy. And it is my sincere belief, which is rooted in both data and expert testimony, that what is best for Billy is that he remain in the home he has known for almost his entire life.

I still find it surprising that the testimony of people with no science background, who have never worked with or studied elephants, is being given equal or greater weight than that of experts who have spent their entire lives studying and advocating for elephant health and conservation. Please listen to the voices that know Billy best, and reject the motion to send Billy to a sanctuary.

Thank you for your thoughtful attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

Katrina Knudson

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Brooke Cole

REGARDING CITY COUNCIL FILE #17-0453

Dear Members of the Los Angeles Arts, Parks & River Committee:

Please Do Not Support the Motion to Release Billy the Elephant to Sanctuary. Billy needs to remain in his loving home at the Los Angeles Zoo in an environment where he can live out the remainder of his life in peace and dignity. Please don't continue to allow him to be a pawn in the animal rights extremists agenda to remove all animals from human care.

Thank you, Sincerely,

REGARDING CITY COUNCIL FILE #17-0453

Dear Members of the Los Angeles Arts, Parks & River Committee:

I do not support, and urge you to deny, the motion to release Billy the Elephant to a sanctuary. Billy should remain in his home at The Los Angeles Zoo, in an environment where he has lived for over 30 years in the care of professionals who know him well. He must stay in the environment that he is accustomed to and that is best suited for him. As a Los Angeles County native, I'm embarrassed and offended by the idea that a committee would entertain the suggestion to remove him. Do not allow him to be a pawn in the animal rights extremist's agenda to remove all animals from human care. I heartily support Billy and all the animals at The Los Angeles Zoo; I implore you to do so as well.

Thank you.
Sincerely,
Carol Hendrix

Mr. Michael Espinosa

Dear Mr. Espinosa,

Billy the elephant has lived at the Los Angeles Zoo for nearly 30 years, since he was taken as a youngster from his natural environment in Malaysia. For most of this time, he has endured living all by himself in an extremely tiny enclosure. As a result, he has displayed significant signs of stress, such as swaying and rocking side to side and head-bobbing due to frustration, boredom and possibly depression.

Elephants naturally need to roam several miles a day to maintain healthy joints and feet. They are also highly intelligent, sensitive, and social animals who need to be engaged by their surroundings in order to be happy. Billy has none of this.

I am not alone in being worried that Billy will face the same fate as his predecessors at the Los Angeles Zoo, who died prematurely due to conditions elephants often acquire while living in enclosed and cramped quarters.

The Los Angeles Zoo promised to close down the old elephant exhibit and build a bigger, better enclosure for Billy that would be more like his natural environment. But even after the renovations, Billy is still being kept in a tiny area separate from the other elephants. He still displays the same repetitive swaying and head-bobbing behavior that demonstrates his stress, boredom, and depression. Simply rotating the elephants from one small area to another does not give them enough exercise.

This new "state-of-the-art" elephant exhibit is not at all what the L.A. Zoo promised it would be. It seems to me that the new exhibit was built more to impress paying visitors than to meet Billy's needs. I feel betrayed and lied to by the Los Angeles Zoo, and I'm still very much concerned about the fate of Billy.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. Dave Rodenhiser

Billy, and other animals placed in habitats unnatural and unhealthy for them, should be placed where he will thrive naturally. Keeping him in a facility that is not normal for him is cruel, especially if he's showing signs of stress.

Please free Billy and send him to an elephant sanctuary.

Sincerely,

Ms. stefanie hidalgo

REGARDING CITY COUNCIL FILE #17-0453

Dear Members of the Los Angeles Arts, Parks & River Committee:

Please Do Not Support the Motion to Release Billy the Elephant to Sanctuary.

Billy needs to remain in his loving home at The Los Angeles Zoo, in an environment where he can live out the remainder of his life in the comfort and level of personal, hands on care that he is accustomed to and that is best suited for him. Please don't continue to allow him to be a pawn in the animal rights extremist's agenda to remove all animals from human care. He is loved and well cared for at the zoo.

Thank you, sincerely,
Cathalina Liebel
