Dear Adam Lid,

I very strongly oppose raising the pet limits in Los Angeles. Dog are becoming a nuisance. Within the past two years I have been bitten by two unleashed dogs.

While a person may own a dog, it does not mean they are good stewards for the animals. Indeed, there are far too many careless dog owners and this is seen by people who take their dogs into the public unleashed. People who do not clean up after their dogs fececes. Dogs who bark uncontrollably. Allowing one person, one residence, one apartment dweller to have unlimited dogs is a recipe for disaster.

Furthermore, cats must be neutered and microchipped.

The health of the people living in the city must take precedent over dogs and cats.
