Jesse Noonan, Ed.D., is the Chief Academic Officer (CAO), at Ednovate Charter Schools. As Ednovate’s CAO, she drives the organization to national leading academic outcomes by refining Ednovate’s academic model, ensuring alignment and effectiveness of assessments, and leading curriculum, data analysis, coaching, academic supports, and compliance. She leads the team in answering Ednovate’s organizational questions around personalization, purpose and community at higher levels each year.

She previously served as the Chief Academic Officer at Youth Policy Institute (YPI), leading cradle-to-college-and-career programming at schools throughout throughout the Pico Union, East Hollywood, and Northeast San Fernando Valley to dramatically accelerate student outcomes. Jesse worked with district, pilot, and charter schools to effectively deliver results-driven community school and academic support models to pipelines of neighborhood schools, the goal of which was to ensure that zip code is not destiny in Los Angeles. She lead the work of the early child education, community school impact, health and wellness, and expanded learning at YPI. Cumulatively, the work of Jesse’s departments at YPI impact over 25,000 students in Los Angeles.

Jesse began her career as a high school English teacher at Locke High School and subsequently moved into alternative education for homeless and marginally-housed youth as well as others placed at-risk for school failure. During her nine-year tenure at Opportunities for Learning and Options for Youth Public Charter Schools, Jesse was the network of school’s first Director of Educational Programs and led a team instrumental in raising the academic achievement and post-secondary expectations of students in the program. Jesse earned her BA at Barnard College, and her Masters degree, Administrative Credential, and Doctorate in Educational Leadership for Social Justice at Loyola Marymount University. She is a Los Angeles Unified School District graduate and a mother of two young sons.
