Comments for Public Posting: When will a city-wide rent moratorium make its way up the ladder? The lack of rent freeze is pretty much unilaterally the issue my fellow community members are worrying about the most. Forcing unemployed tenants to make up rent later on will cause an enormous surge in homelessness once the pandemic ends, because where will we find that money for multiple months' rent to begin with? It's not as if, after many months of being unemployed and staying quarantined, we will all suddenly find high-paying jobs that will make up for these months of lost income.
