

SID & MARTY KROFFT PICTURES

- The Kroffts received a Life-Time Achievement Award from the Emmys last year
- They will be getting a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame this year
- They celebrated the 50th anniversary of H.R. Pufnstuf at Comic Con
- If you have preschool children in the past couple of years you probably have seen the Kroffts' hit series Mutt & Stuff on Nickelodeon (with 73 episodes.)
- A new vision of their classic Electra Woman & Dyna Girl series is out on Amazon Prime, produced by Krofft and Legendary Entertainment.
- The latest Sigmund & the Sea Monsters is an Amazon Prime Series.

Background...

Brothers Sid & Marty Krofft have been producing quality family entertainment for over 50 years. Sid & Marty first became a household name in the '70s with quite a list of TV Shows. H.R. Pufnstuf, The Bugaloos, Lidsville, Land Of The Lost, Sigmund & the Sea Monsters, Pryor's Place (starring Richard Pryor), Far Out Space Nuts, Lost Saucer, The Krofft Supershow, Wonderbug and Bigfoot & Wildboy.

For prime-time they created these classic series: the satirical and funny D.C. Follies series, and the good-natured bantering of siblings with The Donny & Marie Show series and Barbara Mandrell & the Mandrell Sisters series, which were audience favorites. They opened their World of Sid & Marty Krofft amusement park in downtown Atlanta in 1976, where CNN is now headquartered. They were creative directors for Six Flags and installed live shows in parks across America before they embarked on their television career.