Comments for Public Posting: Horses have a long history in Los Angeles. Don't cancel our history and culture of the West. Families and kids need to meet horses at the pony rides and rodeos

Comments for Public Posting: Please reconsider your ban of rodeo and other equestrian events. Rodeo are a part of this regions history and show the athleticism of both the riders and the horses. They have cultural significance and bring opportunities for others to experience something that is difficult to have in our urban setting. There is a great deal of misinformation regarding the sport, and as there are always a few bad apples, the majority of “cowboys/girls” have great respect for the animals they work with.

Comments for Public Posting: Cancel culture at its best. Before you go banning equestrian activities, do the research. Don't make this some grandstanding political act - it is wholly unnecessary, flies in the face of California's deep horse heritage and will have a significant financial impact to the livelihood of the many people involved. Why are you letting PETA dictate public policy? There is no greater public outcry on this. The City has many more pressing issues it should be dealing with at the moment. Just leave it alone.

Comments for Public Posting: My comment relates to the recent petition to ban equestrian events in Los Angeles county. I ask that those in favor please properly educate yourselves before making hasty claims. My family is a rodeo family. The livestock and the horses are treated like royalty, if they weren't they would not do their job, and the contractors for the livestock would not have a business. My children have already learned so much because of rodeo. They have to work hard, take care of their horses, and respect animals. My daughter is a stronger young women because she needs to be in charge of a 1,000 pound animal. Rodeo is one of the only sports an entire family can participate together in, rodeo kids are above and beyond the most polite, caring, friendly and respectful kids I have ever known. They look you in the eye, shake your hand and never need to be reminded to say please and thank you. They are not on screens, they are outside doing chores, working, and learning to be good people. Also, please think about what would happen to these animals if there were no more rodeo? Pony rides? They won't be "adopted" out I can assure you, they will go straight to kill buyers because they will have no job anymore, and folks will not be able to afford ri fees them. It may sound harsh, but it's absolutely true. Most people don't even know about kill pens-educate yourself. So many things have been taken away from our kids the past few years. Everyone grows up wanting to be a cowboy-Western is a way of life and an age old tradition I am blessed to be apart of. Do your homework before backing this ban, our kids futures are depending on it!

Comments for Public Posting: "Rodeo is about life lessons, and not just about belt buckles and winning. There is so much you can learn from a horse and a cow that you can't learn from football." - Jim Wakefield Rodeo teaches life lessons which are too often lacking in today's society. Self Discipline, Animal Husbandry, the Cowboy and Vaquero Lifestyle, Competition "on an equal playing field", Perseverance, Community Involvement, Pride in our country, and honoring a valuable tradition which was formed in part by the early American Spirit.

Comments for Public Posting: Keep the western way of life ALIVE! You wouldn't have California if it wasn't for the people who traveled ACROSS the country with their cattle and horses.
