Comments for Public Posting: I strongly oppose this ban on rodeo. It obvious that you really don't know much about rodeo. Rodeo folks take better care of these animals than they do themselves.

Comments for Public Posting: If you consider this sport for ban, then ban all meat products that come from local farms, and brand named farms. If you see what the meat farms do as humane, then this is nothing in comparison. Animals of this kind can withstand being hit my cars, tractors and can withstand negative degree temperatures. Rodeo lifestyle has been prominent in the United States culture since the beginning of us and taking that away from United States citizens is incomprehensible. I understand that just because they can withstand these subjects, you should not deliberately go hit a cow with a truck, but these cowboys live this lifestyles and showcasing this is nothing of issue. These cowboys own farms, ranches and pastures where they showcase these skills everyday as a part of life. A 3 second run for calves, an 8 second run for bulls, and an 8 second run for bucking horses is nothing that will affect their life, because when you think about it, that calf with be killed for meat one day, that bull will be killed for meat one day, and that horse will be broke to be ridden, or given the best pasture lived lifestyle of its life.

Comments for Public Posting: Please DO NOT ban our historic western/equestrian events. All events have historic significance and should be allowed to continue on for future generations. Any concerns of wellbeing for human or animals can be addressed without the ban of the events. Alternatively you have the ability to introduce language that can improve the events without jumping on the cancel culture bandwagon.

Comments for Public Posting: If all other sports are legal in LA so should this. It is a way of life for some people and it is a passion that is passed down for generations. We cannot let this happen.
