Comments for Public Posting: It seems to me that the City of Los Angeles has more pressing problems to deal with then pick on a sport that has been around for a hundred plus years. A sport that cares for it's animals athletes, a sport that in no way condones the abuse of any animal EVER. In many ways rodeo helps keeping animals from neglect or unfortunate and untimely death by being sent to auction with the only destination being the kill pens as the end result. It is ignorant of someone to try and create a law without knowing all the facts and or spending the time gaining hands on knowledge of the very thing they are trying to condemn by enacting said law. The ripple effect can be catastrophic to an entire country and way of life....

Comments for Public Posting: This is a plea to NOT stop rodeo or any Western activity in LA. Please do research and talk to those who do rodeo and see how well the livestock is taken care of. They really are treated extremely well.

Comments for Public Posting: I oppose the rodeo ban being proposed in Los Angeles. Rodeo animals are not abused, that is a myth. Related by animal right activists who have no understanding of the sport, horses, cattle, or any livestock. This is unfair and singles out other equestrian sports in the way the bill is written. Rodeo brings in a lot revenue and upholds a long tradition of western culture. Please$9 not support this biased and Poorly thought out bill.

Comments for Public Posting: Again you are tasked with a difficult decision. There have been ranch rodeos and the cowboy way of life for over a hundred years. California was a cowboy haven for many. Listening to people who have never owned an animal or cared for one is preposterous at best. Rodeo stock owners care more for the welfare of their animals more than most humans care for their parents and kids. I've seen this first hand as I grew up with ranch duties in the summers and later rodeoing in military rodeos. Everything pertaining to the group advocating this is for personal recognition only...that's all...pushing the buttons of politicians for personal gain of fame. But who feeds the world?? Ranchers.
