Comments for Public Posting: PBR The day arises and your see your daughter say to you dad, mom I wanna ride horses and be the best barrel racer anyone has ever see and have millions of people watch me on TV and have the arenas full of people cheering me on. Daddy, Mommy I seen all these amazing belt buckles I wanna win 1 one day. Or your son comes up to you and says Dad I seen this amazing thing they did years ago it was called bullriding what happened to it I wanna be the best bullrider in the world. How are you gonna a explain to that to them. Well KID you see I really didn't understand the whole rodeo so I just got rid of it? I wanted to make sure the animals were OK when there has been proven evidence there is no harm to the animals Or look then in the eyes and say I'm sorry I should of thought about this in every aspect.. You are taking away peoples jobs the passion there life why would you want to be apart of such a down spin on something that has bee. Done for generations. If there is any confusion or concerns about what I have wrote about feel free to call me Kristen Taylor

Comments for Public Posting: Banning certain equipment which used in western sports events is both ignorant and short sighted. This pieces of equipment not only provide safety for the human athletes but also for the animal athletes. I urge the city council to educate them selves and do research for their selves instead of merely listening to biased opinions. Focus for the council should be on more important matters such as the hunger and homeless situations in LA. This action of banning western sports takes revenue and dollars away from the LA community. Care about your city, not your personal agendas.
