Comments for Public Posting: Cruelty to animals is one of the distinguishing vices of low and base minds. Wherever it is found, it is a certain mark of ignorance and meanness. "The thinking man must oppose all cruel customs no matter how deeply rooted in tradition and surrounded by a halo. When we have a choice, we must avoid bringing torment and injury into the life of another, even the lowliest creature; not to do so is to renounce our manhood and shoulder a guilt which nothing justifies." - Albert Schweitzer

Comments for Public Posting: Rodeo is an industry and a lifestyle for many people, it is not just a sport to those whose who compete. The stock is in no way hurt in the process. It is no different than the football games or basketball you watch on Television, yes it is dangerous, but it is on the competitors own accord. We can't let the rodeo industry die, for the sake of those that base their life's earnings on it.

Comments for Public Posting: I am in support of animal competition being permitted. My pole and barrel horse will do it's pattern if turned out when the patterns are set up. A well handled animal will be happier with a set schedule and a job to do. Especially horses and dogs.

Comments for Public Posting: I would like to say anyone that would interfere with the Sport of Rodeo, is a very special kind of fool! People should treat their children as well as they treat their live stock.

Comments for Public Posting: Do not ban Rodeo, if you took the time to do research you would see these animals are well cared for. They are how people make a living, they would not perform well if they were abused. They are not hurt or tortured. The problem is too many people want to push their beliefs onto the entire world. Let us each enjoy what we like without hurting others. Rodeo is a clean way of life, high school rodeo kept my daughter off the streets and drug free.

Comments for Public Posting: Rodeo animals are treated with respect and dignity and have the greatest qualities of life for livestock; they are seen as athletes and receive the same respect human athletes do! Rodeo animals are bred specifically to do their job and they would not be able to perform at the levels that they do if they did not enjoy it. Nobody forces these animals to do anything, it is in their blood to buck without a flank strap and without any human interference!
