Comments for Public Posting: No act of torture can be considered part of a culture. Just as laws have evolved to protect human rights, since what was considered a tradition, part of a wrong morality of the time, over time society was structured into a less ignorant, more reasonable and civilized one. In the same way, a society does not reflect complete progress if the rights to decent treatment do not encompass everyone without distinction of species.

Comments for Public Posting: It's fucking sad in 2024 we still have to see this shit happening. I know world is fucked up where there is no respect for living beings and people enjoying watching sickening bloody tortures, but I expect a lil more from the "upper sides", laws to respect and a serious ban for this shit
