Comments for Public Posting: I feel that if rodeos use prods, electrical devices and belts to promote extreme pain or irritation causing the animals to be more aggressive, it does not reflect a true rodeo. During a round up, or horse breaking, these devices are not used, right?

Comments for Public Posting: The western way of life does not abuse animals. It is actually a culture of people who cherish our land and our animals more than you can fathom. We are the people who fight with blood, sweat and tears to preserve rural areas and keep open space for animals to thrive. Anyone trying to ban equine events is truly ignorant of the lifestyle we live. I beg of you not to make decisions based on facts you don't have and a lifestyle you don't understand. We know how to best care for our animals because we are the ones who work hard to provide for them and always have their best interests at heart. If you don't live it, you can't possibly make decisions to protect it. Don't ban something just because you don't understand it.

Comments for Public Posting: Animals are cruelly treated in rodeos for human entertainment.
Animals are not ours to use & abuse.
