Comments for Public Posting: Please take a hard look at the people who are for and against this ban. From my perspective, this would be taking away opportunities for families and future generations, to work with livestock and learn how to handle them properly in the most efficient ways possible. The economic impacts of rodeo events are far greater than most people understand. These events bring together minds from all over the WORLD, creating countless business ventures and sharing of ideas, for everyone in the community and beyond. Rotary clubs, boys/girls clubs, tradesmen, businessmen, first responders, politicians and everyone in between all have found benefits from rodeos. Banning rodeos or the tools necessary for working with livestock, will ultimately take food off people plates while retracting knowledge and interaction with livestock in the area. You cannot continue catering to self proclaimed "activists" who believe we as humans are a plague on this earth. Whose ideals would only take away opportunities for the next generation, of which, they are probably not contributing to. I encourage you to audit all who claim to be veterinarians, or work with large animals on a regular basis. There is a list of every licensed vet in California and it should be more than clear who retains REAL knowledge of the tools used to handle livestock. That will tell you who is truthful or not. Would you allow a biologist to dictate how an architect does their job or visa versa? You must trust the clear professionals in every field. Thank you

Comments for Public Posting: Leave rodeo alone, those animals have a job, 8 seconds a day. Your agenda is wrong in so many ways, will bring you rodeo animals for pets in your high rise.

Comments for Public Posting: There is nothing wrong with rodeo, PETA has killed more animals than rodeo ever has or will.

Comments for Public Posting: Redeo has been around for many years. I've been to number of these in the past. I have never ever seen any animal abuse what so ever! Those bulls, horses and steers are way to valuable to be injured. They are treated better than most peoples pets! I 100% support the sport of redeo and hope you do also. Thank you for your time

Comments for Public Posting: Rodeo animals are treated fairly and with respect. Most stock are treated better than some humans(chiropractic work spa appointments pedicures and routine vet work). The western way of life is one that needs to be preserved!

Comments for Public Posting: If we let PETA control the rodeo and all equestrian venues, we will no longer be able to own or ride horses. They don't want rodeos or horse keeping rights. They are also trying to control horse keeping rights in LA county with ridiculous untenable restrictions! PETA is in insane corrupt organization. Long live the rodeo and horsemen of all disciplines.

Comments for Public Posting: Just since 1998, PETA has killed well over 47,000 animals entrusted to their care. Please DO NOT listen to PETA or HSUS their entire existence is dependent on destroying pet ownership and horses and bulls used in rodeos are taken better care of than homeless veterans.

Comments for Public Posting: I support rodeo. It's a way of life. No one takes care of animals better than rodeo people. The commitment to the animals is a huge part of the profession.

Comments for Public Posting: I'm in favor of RODE and the heritage it stands for. Growing up, working in agriculture sector and with rodeo stock on a first hand basis. I can personally attest these animals receive the highest standards when it comes to animal husbandry. Producers, breeders, and Agriculturalist have a personal investment in the industry. We would spend our very own last dollar to make sure our animals are cared for and fed before our selves. More than I can say about the opposition who's dollars go to high cost legal teams and false propaganda campaigns that hasn't produced a single true benefit to animal welfare or provided any meaningful or beneficial out come to animals nation wide. In fact, evidence shows they cause more inhumane and devastating effects to animals surrendered to their care. I proudly stand with Rode, ag producers, and all agriculturalist to defend and fight for the true meaning of what we do, represent, and the quality and character of this life style.
