Comments for Public Posting: Lease do not destroy another industry. This state is losing the vibrancy that once made us an example to the world.

Comments for Public Posting: Please support Rodeo. DO Not Ban it!! It's important for kids and adults. These rodeo contractors/competitors take better care of their animals than most dog owners I know in the cities. Let's keep rodeo alive!

Comments for Public Posting: Ever since its humble beginnings, Rodeo has been a wholesome activity that brings people together. Old cowboys, young buckaroos, and sharp riders gather together not only for the competition, but the camaraderie that can only be found amongst those whose entire lives revolve around caring for animals. You see, these people spend more on the care of their animals than they do themselves. You've never seen as pampered an animal as the horses and bulls that make up a rough stock string. The care that is given to each and every animal used in rodeo is apparent in the way their sleek coats shine (only the best nutrition), their muscles ripple (only the best exercise regime), and their feet are perfectly shod (only the best hoof care to ensure the horse doesn't get hurt). The way the animal works for the rider shows a trust that can only be cultivated after quality time spent together. Not only is Rodeo a western legacy that takes us back to our roots, but it is a modern day pillar that promotes family values, as well as the importance and value of caring for animals. As such, it is imperative that Rodeos remain.

Comments for Public Posting: Rodeo is a character building sport for young kids and adults which teaches kids how to take care of animals in a humane way, regardless of what PETA thinks. Most rodeo animals are taken better care of than most humans.

Comments for Public Posting: Please continue to allow the sport of rodeo. I have competed in rodeos, and so has my son. Our rodeo horses were always well taken care of. I have also attended numerous rodeos as a spectator. The rodeo stock have always been well-cared for.
