Courteney Cox is a renowned actor, producer and director who has amassed a resume as extensive as it is versatile.

Cox will soon reprise her iconic role as Gale Weathers in Scream 6, the sixth installment in the cult classic franchise. Directed by Matt Bettinelli-Olpin and Tyler Gillett, Cox stars opposite Melissa Barerra, Jenna Ortega and Hayden Panettiere as the survivors of the original Ghostface killings attempt to leave Woodsboro behind for a fresh chapter in New York City.

Cox also stars as troubled novelist Patricia Phelps in Sharon Horgan and Jeff Astrof's critically acclaimed horror-comedy series, "Shining Vale." Set to premiere its second season later this year, the chilling series co-stars Greg Kinnear and Mira Sorvino and follows Patricia and her dysfunctional family as they move from the city to a small town with hopes of a fresh start but instead find themselves suddenly living with a paranormal. As they settle into their new home and life, Patricia soon realizes that it's not just her personal demons that pose a threat to her family's happiness. Entertainment Weekly heralded Cox's performance as "scary good" and stated that "Cox remains a comedy master, nailing every punchline with expert timing and easy flair" and the The Wrap proclaims, "Cox's performance is fantastic...her Pat is a strong, nuanced portrayal and Cox manages to keep the audience guessing what's really going on in the Phelps homestead."

Cox made her acting debut in 1984 on the daytime soap "As the World Turns" and later that year was cast by Brian de Palma for Bruce Springsteen's video "Dancing in the Dark." She landed her first well-known role as an actress in 1987, when she was cast as the bright, perky girlfriend of Michael J. Fox on "Family Ties." Courteney gained international recognition as she endeared herself to millions as the neurotic yet loveable Monica Geller, on NBC's Emmy® Award winning comedy "Friends." The show garnered Screen Actors Guild Award nominations for "Outstanding Performance by an Ensemble in a Comedy Series" from 1999-2004.

She then segued into her Golden Globe® nominated role as Jules Cobb, a recently divorced mom in her forties facing the humorous challenges, pitfalls and rewards of life's next chapter in the comedy sitcom "Cougar Town." Cox also served as Executive Producer on the show.

In 1996, Cox starred in Wes Craven's horror comedy Scream, which grossed over $100 million at the box office. She has gone on to reprise her role five additional times for the Scream franchise. Additional film credits include Ace Ventura: Pet Detective, Bedtime Stories, 3000 Miles to Graceland, Mr. Destiny, Cocoon: The Return, Zoom, November, The Longest Yard and Barnyard.

In 2008, Cox made her directorial debut with the drama Monday Before Thanksgiving for Glamour's Reel Moments Project, a series of three short films based on real women's stories written by Glamour readers. The project benefited a women's program for FilmAid International, an organization that uses the power of film to promote health, strengthen communities and enrich the lives of women around the world. In 2012, Courteney directed the Lifetime Original Movie, Talhotblond, her first full-length project as a director. The film, starring Garret Dillahunt and Laura San Giacomo, is based on a true story of an online love triangle that resulted in murder. Cox's feature film directorial debut, Just Before I Go, opened in select markets after premiering at the 2014 Tribeca Film Festival. The film stars Seann William Scott and Kate Walsh and follows a depressed man who returns to his hometown to make amends before committing suicide. Cox also served as a producer on the film.

Cox established her own production company, Coquette, in 2004. Projects have included "Cougar Town," "Dirt," which ran for two seasons and focused on the price one must pay for success in a world built upon unraveling the truth behind celebrity façades, the interior design show for cable's WE (Women's Entertainment) Network entitled "Mix It Up," the comedy "Daisy Does Americ" a for TBS and "The Tripper." In 2014, Coquette premiered their hit production, the Craig Ferguson-hosted "Celebrity Name Game," from Fremantle/Debmars Mercury. The fun half hour game show featured two celebrity contestants paired with civilian contestants for fast-paced speed-rounds of trying to guess celebrity trivia and recently ended its third season.

Additionally, Cox served as an executive producer and the host of Facebook Watch's documentary series, "9 Months with Courteney Cox" via her Hopper Productions banner and Ample Entertainment. The widely popular series received a 2021 Daytime Emmy® Award nomination for "Outstanding Short Form Daytime Non-Fiction Program," as well as a nomination for "Short Form Series" for the first annual Critics' Choice Real TV Awards.

In 2021, Cox joined her former "Friends" co-stars for the highly acclaimed, reunion special, which received a Primetime Emmy® Award nomination for "Outstanding Variety Special."

In addition to Cox's remarkable career in entertainment, she recently launched the award-winning homecare line, Homecourt. Working alongside skincare chemists to develop non-toxic, yet incredibly effective formulas, Courteney worked to collaborate with trailblazers in sustainable design to launch the collection of beauty products for the home. Accolades to date include Allure's Best of Beauty Award for "Best Splurges of Body," Good Housekeeping's Cleaning & Organizing Award for "Best Floral Scent," an Architectural Digest Cleverest Award, and Esquire Grooming Award.

Cox is dedicated to her philanthropic work with organizations such as The Epidermolysis Bullosa Medical Research Foundation (EBMRF), whose work is committed to raising funds for ongoing research and public awareness through the media and various fundraising programs. She is also a longtime supporter of The Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS) Golden West Chapter as they continue their research in hopes of finding a cure for the nervous system-targeting condition.
